Mediation and Child Custody Recommending Counseling (CCRC) sessions are designed to effect a settlement of the issue of visitation rights of all parties that is in the best interest of the children. You are being admitted to this session as an interpreter to further facilitate this process.

Your ability to listen and translate what is being communicated makes your role an important one. Please limit your role to translation only, making additional comments or modifying the communication between the parties and the mediator is prohibited.

Please note that Mediation and CCRC sessions are confidential and as an interpreter you are bound by the confidentiality of the session. The mediator will not be available to any interpreter for any direct contact or conversations about the family and/or the session. In addition, you may not discuss any of the information shared during the session with anyone else outside of the session. If you feel that it may be difficult for you to remain neutral or for you to maintain the confidentiality of the information you hear during the session, please excuse yourself from the process.

Thank you for your support and cooperation.
